SUBJECT INDEX

Aborigine, Central Australian, the haematology of the.

4. Haemoglobin, erythrocyte counts, constants, fragilities and sedimentation rates. Effects of Europeanization (Smith, Casley-), 37.

Acetate tolerance in sheep, the effect of diet on (Jarrett and Filsell), 347.

Amiphenazole, the effect of, on morphine-induced analgesia in mice (McKenzie), 47.

Antibody production, studies on the nature of, during the in vitro culture of lymphoid tissues (Dineen and Perry), 363.

Antigen, staphylococcal, a heat stable protective (Fisher), 479.

Apparatus for the continuous measurement of eating, drinking and spontaneous activity of rats (Glow and Chambers), 355.

"Auto-immune" complement-fixation reaction, serum protein levels and the (Hackett, Beech and Roman), 307.

Bile, some observations on the production of, by the isolated perfused liver of the rat (Morris), 99.

Blood, flow, the effect of increased muscle, on exercise hyperaemia in the human forearm (Dean and Skinner), 413.

Blood pH determination (Holden), 419.

Carbon tetrachloride, the effect of precursors of pyridine nucleotides on poisoning by (Gallagher), 251.

Cholestanol in avian plumage (Bolliger and Varga), 265.

Cholesterol, the esterification and removal of, by reticulo-endothelial cells, the effect of corn oil and of coconut oil on (Day), 461.

Corticosteroids, differences in association of, with serum proteins of different animal types (Reich), 175.

Coxiella burneti in kangaroos and kangaroo ticks in Western Queensland (Pope, Scott and Dwyer), 17.

Culicines, Townsville, as possible vectors of dengue and allied viruses among local feral fauna (O'Gower), 1.

Ectromelia virus, see Virus, ectromelia.

Encephalomyocarditis virus, see Virus, encephalomyocarditis.

Fatty acids bound to albumin, the removal of unesterified, from the peritoneal cavity of the rat (Lascelles and Morris), 473.

Formiminoglutamic acid, an improved microbiological assay for (Davis and Onesti), 239.

Glucose, the fate of, supplied at a rate sufficient to maintain basal metabolism (Dean), 91.

Haem synthesis in vitro. Studies with mammalian and avian erythrocytes (Clark and Walsh), 135.

Heliotrine, the pyrrolizidine alkaloid, the function of total dose in the production of chronic lethal liver disease in rats by periodic injections of (Bull and Dick), 515.

Histamine, release of, from mast cells by antigen-antibody reactions in vitro (Archer), 147.

Homograft, haemopoietic, radiation induced "acceptance" and the immature (Ilbery), 69.

Hydrocortisone, augmentation by triiodothyronine of some of the effects of, in man (Hetzel, Charnock, Lawrence and Wellby), 227.

Immunological response produced in inbred mice following the isologous and homologous transfer of antigenically stimulated spleen cells (Dineen and Perry), 375.

Infection with mousepox, studies on the innate resistance of mice to

1. Resistance and antibody production (Schell), 271.
2. Route of inoculation and resistance; and some observations on the inheritance of resistance (Schell), 289.

Influenza virus, see Virus, influenza.

Isoniazid and other hydrazides, the metabolism of, by Mycobacteria (Youatt), 245.

Isoniazid and related compounds, the uptake of, by Mycobacteria (Youatt), 331.

Laryngotracheitis virus, see Virus, laryngotracheitis.

Liver disease in rats, the function of total dose in the production of chronic lethal, by periodic injections of the pyrrolizidine alkaloid, heliotrine (Bull and Dick), 515.

Lymph and plasma, determination of protein fractions in small samples of, in the rabbit (Courtice), 395.

Lymph, hepatic, the flow and composition of, in the normal and hypercholesterolaemic rabbit (Courtice), 403.

Mast cells, release of histamine from, by antigen-antibody reactions in vitro (Archer), 147.

Melanophores, the effect of pituitary extracts on, in isolated elasmobranch skin (Waring), 187.

Muscle, cardiac, the action of anions on (Nayler and McCulloch), 117.

Mycobacteria, the metabolism of isoniazid and other hydrazides by (Youatt), 245.

Mycobacteria, the uptake of isoniazid and related compounds by (Youatt), 331.

Olfactory efferent system, properties of the (Kerr), 29.

Pancreas in situ, a closed method for the microscopic study of the living rat (Palmer and Wilkins), 467.

Pituitary extracts, the effect of, on melanophores in isolated elasmobranch skin (Waring), 187.

Plasma and lymph, determination of protein fractions in small samples of, in the rabbit (Courtice), 395.

Plasma, the amount of, trapped by red cells in centrifuged and sedimented blood (Clark and Walsh), 451.

Plasma, the positive inotropic activity of (Nayler and McCulloch), 127.

Protein fractions, determination of, in small samples of plasma and of lymph in the rabbit (Courtice), 395.

Pseudomonas aeruginosa, glucose and nitrate utilisation by anaerobic cultures of (Collins), 163.

Pseudomonas aeruginosa, lysogeny in (Holloway, Egan and Monk), 321.

Pseudomonas aeruginosa, nitrate adaptation by ageing suspensions of (Collins), 261.

Pyridine nucleotides, the effect of precursors of, on poisoning by carbon tetrachloride (Gallagher), 251.

Reserpine, the peripheral dilator action of, in man (De la Lande, Parks, Sandison, Skinner and Whelan), 313.

Resistance to infection, see under Infection.

Selenium, a fluorimetric micro-determination of, in biological material (Cousins), 11.

Sera, the antistaphylococcal activity of human, in vitro and its relationship to passive protective potency (Fisher), 339.

Serum protein levels and the "auto-immune" complement-fixation reaction (Hackett, Beech and Roman), 307.

Serum proteins, factors affecting the staining process in the quantitative estimation of, by paper electrophoresis (Wilkinson and Wilkinson), 487.

Setonyx brachyurus, evaporative water loss and temperature regulation in the marsupial (Bentley), 301.

Spleen, the dynamic red cell storage function of the, in sheep.

2. Jugular haematocrit fall after some tranquillizing agents, particularly chlorpromazine (Turner and Hodgetts), 79.

Thalassemia major, the occurrence of β-aminoisobutyric acid in the urine of patients with (Hillcoat), 441.

Tissue culture cells, long term storage of (Ferguson), 389.

Tissue injury by high frequency electric current: observations with the Sandison-Clark ear-chamber.

1. Injury to small blood vessels (Buckley), 195.
2. Injury to small groups of cells (Buckley), 211.

Triiodothyronine, augmentation by, of some of the effects of hydrocortisone in man (Hetzel, Charnock, Lawrence and Wellby), 227.

Ventricular action potential, changes in polarisation resistance during the repolarisation phase of the rabbit (Johnson and Tille), 509.

Virus, ectromelia, the effect of hydrogen ion concentration and of heat on the complement fixing antigen and haemagglutinin of (Lawrence), 61.

Virus, encephalomyocarditis, a survey for antibodies to, in man and animals (Pope and Scott), 447.

Virus infections, studies of arthropod-borne, in Queensland.

2. Serological investigations of antibodies to dengue and Murray Valley encephalitis in eastern Queensland (Doherty and Carley), 427.

Virus, influenza, equilibrium sedimentation of, in caesium chloride density gradients (Barry), 499.

Virus, laryngotracheitis, of fowls, the growth of three strains of infections, in tissue culture (Pulsford), 153.

Wounds, the healing of, the effects of suture materials and suture techniques on, in the skin of the sheep (Lascelles and Claringbold), 111.
